“ I want to extend my deepest sympathy to Amber's family and friends. We lost an amazing person. I will remember her spirit as we all continue to carry her in our hearts. I can still see her smile and hear her laughter. I will never forget the way her eyes would light up like stars when she would look at her baby boy who she loved so deeply. I miss my friend very much. This still feels very unfair and unreal. It has inspired me to hug a little longer, return texts and calls and never be too busy to visit with a friend because we never know if we will be able to see them again. Amber, I would give anything to squeeze you so tight, and tell you how much you mean to me. Rest in peace my sweet Desert Willow Sister.

“ My Amber memories exceed the word count of this post so I'll keep this short. Amber was a firecracker with a big heart. Like her family, she was free-spirited, warm and accepting. As a teenager, she was a cutie who walked with a bounce in her step yet she didn't take crap from anyone. Later, got a tatto that said DGAF and dyed her hair purple. She was effortlessly cool. She started epic food fights, and sometimes actual fights. I was a wimp compared to her. One time we were hanging out in her driveway like you do in Rio Rancho after highschool with nothing to do. A bee flew close to me and I freaked out and swatted it away. She just stared at the swarming insect calmly and said something like, "I wanna be a bee. You just fly around and scare people." It was sort of the most Zen thing I ever heard anyone say and it always stuck with me. Amber's time cut shorts stings the hearts of those who loved her but she sucked the honey out of life and that settles the score.

“ Amber was always and will forever be the energy that lights this memorial candle. A beautiful being with a sense of wander and radiance. Forever let her energy live through us and forever can we be blessed enough to feel her in our day to day routines.
