“ I met Aunt Sandy in 2018 when I moved to New Mexico. My favorite memory of Aunt Sandy happened the day we were trying to load my son’s pig onto a trailer. There were 4 of us there that day doing all we could to load the pig up to take him to fair. That pig was ornery, stubborn, and unusually smart. He had our number and was NOT getting in that trailer. There were four of us versus the pig. The pig was winning. Out came Aunt Sandy with a Drumstick ice cream cone. As soon as the pig heard the wrapper his head snapped up. It was obvious this was not his first Drumstick. He and Aunt Sandy were clearly acquainted. He got in the trailer. Tiny Aunt Sandy accomplished what the four of us could not. That moment pretty accurately represented who she was: a tiny lady with a big presence. I cannot honestly say we had many good conversations, or a deep relationship. However, I know Aunt Sandy was the type of person with the heart to feed the neighborhood strays. She was certain of herself. She knew what she wanted and was never hesitant to make it known. She loved my uncle. Aunt Sandy will be missed. Six years was not long enough, and I wish there was more time. I’m grateful for the time given. Rest peacefully Aunt Sandy. Love, Chrissy (and Pat)
