“ You know, you see the same people everyday, work with the same people everyday, get to know their stories, their origins, their personalities, their laughs, their demeanors, and even though you may not see every person you know and work with every consecutive day, when you do meet them and work with them again, it's like you can pick right up the conversation, the memory, the funny story, the grievance, the how've you been's, the good to see you's, the how's the family's, as if you'd just worked with them yesterday.

And then one day you learn you won't be seeing one of those familiar faces anymore, one many knew, worked well and fondly with, who always had a great demeanor and nature, who you know everyone always thought and spoke well of and always will, and who you personally will lament and always miss.

Doug, thanks for keeping our way smooth and strong, that it let us all get home safe to our loved ones, season by season and year after year. I hope to travel as much as you have and I'll think of you.

*"...they shall be one with the man in the wind and the west moon;
...they shall have stars at elbow and foot;
though they sink through the sea they shall rise again;
and death shall have no dominion."
- Dylan Thomas*
