God knows how precious baby angels are so when he takes one he knows how much it hurts. No mother and father should have to go through that pain but unfortunately some do. My heart goes out to you and your family. May the lord help you through this pain. You guys are always in my prayers. Love you all

“ To Michaela and Jesús, you are the most incredible parents, dedicated friends, and loving believers in God. You are an inspiration as you walk through this. The grief will change, continue to choose joy and love over anger and despair. You will learn how to better carry this grief more and more each day. It comes in waves, so do not be discouraged if one day is harder than most out of the blue. Your faith shines brightly through this tragedy and that is why I think God lets these things happen. Terrible tragedies show us how true and deep our faith really is and it serves as a witness to those who do not know Him. Emmanuel is a testimony to your faith and love despite the hardship. We ache along with you and we love you all so much...

To Emmanuel, you are so loved little buddy. We cannot wait to see you again! Play with our little Timothy while you're over there. You guys can entertain each other until we can get there. You are so blessed to be with our Lord and Savior right now although we wish we could've held you here, there's no place we would rather you be! I hope you know how much joy we had over the life you did have here. We cheered when we found out you were a boy! We hugged a little Elicia when we knew you were on the way. We so love the time that we had with you! We thank God for the gift of you!

Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not onto your own understanding; in all your ways submit to him, and he will make you paths straight. Proverbs 3:5-6. Though you feel you are alone please know that I think about you daily multiple times. My heart is broken for you but I am lifting you up in prayer and love. If you need me to stop and pray just text a message or just an emoji. I will lift up your family in prayer. Hold each other close. Love you girl.
