George had an unwavering love and support for his sons, Jasen and Brenden Mulvaney. In addition to his love for his boys, he cherished the companionship of his two dogs, Bonnie and Clyde. They were not just pets to him, but cherished members of his family who brought him immeasurable joy and comfort. Outside of his adrenaline-fueled pursuits, George found solace and fulfillment in completing dirt work. Whether it was working outside on his own property or a big job, he approached each task with dedication and skill, leaving a lasting mark on the land he loved. George will be remembered for his larger-than-life personality, his unwavering loyalty to those he held dear, and quick wit. “ George made my Aunt Kathryn happy. I will pray for him forever for the joy and happiness he brought her. He slayed all the dragons in her life just like St George and I know he will slay them for her in heaven too.
