“ We are sorry to read of the passing of your loved one. Words don't always ease the pain when you are grieving the death of a loved one, but we hope you will find comfort in Jesus' promise of the resurrection hope (Acts 24:15) when he will raise up those who are now sleeping in death (John 11:11) restoring them back to life, on the renewed Paradise earth (John 5:28,29; Luke 23:43) what a wonderful blessing to look forward too. Until then, may Jehovah God (Psalms 83:18) grant you peace and comfort during this grievous time.-Matthew 5:4.

“ It was my great privilege to serve as Jack's pastor for the last years of his life. I can truly say that during my visits to him he ministered more to me than I did to him. I am honored that he was my brother in Christ and friend.

Jesus said to her, “I am the resurrection and the life. Whoever believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live, and everyone who lives and believes in me shall never die. Do you believe this?” She said to him, “Yes, Lord; I believe that you are the Christ, the Son of God, who is coming into the world.” (John 11:25-27, ESV)

“ I was privileged to have known Jack and call him a friend for the past 20 years. He was like a 3rd grandfather to me. He and I would go to Whiteway Café or to Frances' Restaurant here in Belen for breakfast every week or so. Then to Golden Corral for breakfast in Albuquerque. The last time he and I had breakfast together, he rode in my little MGB and had a ball (Wanda has photos of Jack in that MGB).

When Jack was still living in Belen, I would call his phone and when he would answer, I greet him with "Hey, Old Guy! How you doing?" He's laugh and banter back at me. I asked him a few times with, "Is it true that when God said 'Let there be light', that you were the electrician on duty?" Or after he passed 95 years old, "Jack, I've been to Yosemite National Park, Kings Canyon National Park, and Sequoia National Park. I've seen those giant redwood trees so tall and majestic. Thank you for planting them."

One day many years ago, Jack and I went to the cabin belonging to Pastor Joe Long, and as we were driving along (Joe was driving), I saw one of those "Deer Crossing" signs and asked Jack how the deer know that they are supposed to cross at these signs. He told me something like the deer must have been trained. Joe just looked at us and said, "Dolts! I'm driving along with Dolts!" We had a great laugh at things like that.

Jack was also a Baptist Deacon. He didn't only have the title, Jack lived the Christian life and walked the Christian walk. He was the Deacon I can hope to be some day.

Jack is now with his Bride and Daughter and with so many other friends and family members. One day when my time comes, I know he will come up and say, "Welcome to Heaven, Wayne. Let me show you around."

“ Peace be to all as Granddad is free to do the things he loves once again. He was a very interesting man that I was fortunate enough to get to spend some time with as a kid, but not as an adult when I would have appreciated it more.

“ I always enjoyed watching Jack in the performance of his woodworking projects. The results were always amazing.

In his 102 years, Jack saw and experienced the tremendous changes wrought by advances in technology that influenced all of the things that we take for granted. Being born prior to World War 1 when so much of rural America was without electricity, basic telephone service, and automobiles, Jack witnessed flight from just after Kitty Hawk to the ISS (International Space Station), horse-drawn vehicles to automobiles having GPS, party lines to cellular, and arithmetic to computerized processes that control everything including woodworking. Those are just a few of the things. I would like to think that Jack probably thought those advancements were nice but that nothing could replace the deep satisfaction of simply writing a letter using a pen and paper, communicating in person, taking a walk when wanting to go someplace, and working the wood with one's own hands with cherished tools.

I really liked and admired Jack. To the family I extend my deepest condolences. You had him for 102 years. That was a life well lived.
