“ The words are lost deep in my heart over your passing, daddy. The relationship we shared was ours and the love we shared was special. I am so thankful to God for the week we shared on our last visit. I was able to see for the first time that I was not alone in my crazy thought process, it came from you!! That the love of old western movies was something we shared, especially John Wayne and that we were able to watch, The Sons of Katie Elder! It made my heart happy to give you Georgie and I was excited over how much you loved my old monkey. I loved the sound of your voice, it was so comforting. I loved being able to wake up and drink coffee and smoke cigarettes together as awful as it sounds lol. I loved waking up in the mornings to find you with a smile on your face because you were able to watch me sleep. I loved how you called me, buddy. I loved to hear you strum the guitar. Life isn't fair, I learned that early on and with that I learned how to be grateful for the smallest of blessings. I will always hold you in my heart, the way I have since I was a little girl. I am thankful God heard our prayers and we were able to make special memories. Until we meet again in heaven, "Sleep with the angels, buddy".

“ From the day I was born you have been in the world and it doesn't feel the same without you, my brother. But I know where you are because your belief in God was solid. I know Mama and Daddy were waiting for you at the gates, along with so many others that loved you. Rest now. Your work on earth is done. Until we meet again...

Dad,
I love you. My earliest childhood memories are all surrounded with you being the foundation. You showed me unconditional love, and what that is suppose to look like. You ingrained God in my life, the love of music and my love of coffee. I was lucky enough to take the memories with me in my life to teach me how to be a mother and grandmother. Your heart has always been big. I am thankful for all of the lessons I've been taught along my journey, and even more thankful for the role you played in those lessons. My love for you has always been unconditional. I feel blessed to be your daughter.
